

If

you've heard that a hysterectomy is the only treatment for your heavy period, then you haven't heard about this.

If hormonal therapy hasn't helped, or if you were told your only option is surgery, you should know about a new, FDA-approved, minimally invasive treatment that can eliminate or significantly reduce your heavy period. This outpatient procedure is safe and highly effective, does not affect your natural hormonal balance, and is covered by most insurers. To find out if this treatment is right for you, and for expert information about all your options, please give us a call.
